Patrick McMahon
Senior Assistant Business Editor
Los Angeles Times

Patrick McMahon is a senior assistant Business editor at the Los Angeles Times, where he has worked on and off for 21 years. In his current position, he oversees the paper's business coverage of air travel and aerospace, tourism, healthcare, white-collar crime and state government. He has worked for the paper's Business, California, Orange County, and National sections over the years. He was twice state political editor of the paper and also editor of the Orange County and Inland Empire regional editions from 2004 to 2006.

He took a break from the Times from 1997 to 2003 and moved to Seattle, where he was the USA Today's reporter covering the Pacific Northwest. He has also worked for the St. Petersburg Times in Florida, and National Journal and Congressional Quarterly in Washington, D.C.
